

All Mine, You Have to Be
Rhea In & Kelsey Tynik
Tutu Gallery
February 14 - March 28, 2020

Feline-run Tutu Gallery is beyond excited to announce an immersive exhibition, All Mine, You Have to Be, on view from February 14 - March 28, 2020, featuring Rhea In and Kelsey Tynik. For this Valentine's Day, Rhea and Kelsey will showcase interactive cat-sized human toys and human-sized cat toys, along with abstract paintings decorated by mural elements. By turning the gallery into a playground for both cats and humans, All Mine, You Have to Be celebrates a love that is frantically expansive, expressed through fantasy, play, and innocence.

Both Rhea and Kelsey employ abstraction from a perspective of childlike intuition in order to make sense of adulthood. In her paintings, Rhea translates scenes of bar games, dating and living alone with curiosity and looseness in gesture. This sense of ease manifests in her subject matter: instead of thrill and desire, sexual encounters are shown with fragility and naiveness; Distant memories morph into abstract forms and compound colors without forced distortion. Kelsey works primarily in sculpture, creating toy-like objects and immersive environments that mimic children's imaginary play. Having spent years as a window designer for retail brands, she is drawn to crafting dream worlds and encouraging all to partake in an experience of pure joyfulness without guilt or shame. In All Mine, You Have to Be, Rhea and Kelsey collaborate to decorate Tutu's entire apartment gallery space with murals, drawings, and sculptures. Guests are invited to play with the installations exhibited.

Through bringing this exhibition to life, Tutu and the artists hope to introduce the jolly aspect of abstraction and to inspire our guests with light-hearted artmaking. All Mine, You Have to Be is among our many endeavors to share under-the-radar talents and their genuine understanding of the ordinary but fantastical experience of being.
